

Press Release

A dark comedy about modern relationships comes to the New Wimbledon Theatre

Love You & Leave You (Dead) is a dark comedy starting at 7.45pm on the 14th of June at the New Wimbledon Theatre in London as part of the From the Fringe Festival.

When Cal comes home from the hospital after suffering from a nearly-exploded appendix, Mandy is forced to question the mortality of her girlfriend. She considers the undeniable eventuality that one day, Cal might unwillingly leave Mandy through her own death.

With a few weeks bedrest on the cards, babysitting Cal becomes dominated by an internal struggle: Wouldn't the pain of loss be so much easier to survive if she knew it was coming? If she was prepared for it?

In an effort to control the unbearable pain of losing a loved one, Mandy decides to be the one to kickstart the grieving process and instigate the loss herself—by killing her girlfriend Cal.

Miniver Theatre was founded with the intention to create innovative theatre pieces and performance events exploring the ugliness of love. The company was created by writer Megan Young and producer Andrei Cotocu after graduating from Queen Mary University of London in 2019 through their desire to continue making thought-provoking dramatic work. Writer and Director Rachel Jermy joined the team at the start of 2020.

Although currently based in London, the two founders have been shaped by their upbringing – coming from Sheffield and Bucharest, respectively – and their very different backgrounds. Their distinct creative identities and unlikely pairing has fashioned Miniver into an exciting, emerging theatre company.
